

Positive Floatation

A boat building standard which ensures that should a hull (loaded to its maximum rated capacity including occupations) be completely swamped with water, it will have enough built in buoyancy to remain afloat.

Or the vessels lift exceeds its maximum swamped and loaded weight.

All Atomix Hulls are independently tested and approved as Positive Floatation